Workshop Description

Customer Driven Service. This transit specific training workshop walks the participants through a comprehensive training of why customer service is important, how customer service is a reflection of the organization's culture, the vital role of the dispatcher in customer service, what transit customers want, need and expect from the service provider, as well as how moral and stress affect customer service. While much attention is given to the role of the transit operator, every employee in the organization will benefit from the materials presented.

All participants will receive a copy of the Participant's Guide, along with an electronic version that includes all videos, power points, exercises and an E-learner's Guide that they can then use when back at their agency to review Customer Driven Service.
